Total of 681 Survivors, Including 70 Officers, Have Been Rescued

1260 WERE ON BOARD

Listing Included 1170 Members of the Crew and Ninety Officers

LONDON, Sept. 19.—A total of 579 British lives were lost when a German submarine sank the huge aircraft carrier Courageous somewhere off the British coast late Sunday night, it appeared today.

A total of 681 survivors, including 70 officers, have been rescued, the admiralty said.

It was announced that the approximate complement of the Courageous was 1260, consisting of 1170 members of the crew and 90 officers.

Southward from partitioned Poland into the historically turbulent Balkan States the gliding light of world alarm moved today as Europe's democracies and neutral states wondered where the red of Russia and brown of Germany would turn next.

Continued relative quiet on the western front—which moved Senator William E. Borah of Idaho to comment that the allies are "pulling their punches"—that there is "something phony" about this war—puzzled observers, and again the phantom of German peace proffers rose from the corpse of Poland.

Yet to Britain, so far counting officially only 438 survivors out of a complement of more than 1100 men aboard the sunken aircraft carrier Courageous; to Poland, still fighting losing battles at Warsaw and on three other fronts; and to Rumania, fattened by the world war and now possibly ready for the slaughter—there was nothing "phony" connected with the war.

Already, a dispatch from Cernauti, near the Polish frontier revealed, Soviet troops crossed the Rumanian frontier, ordered Rumanian guards to fall back, and proceeded to plant mines under bridges over the Dniester River.

In spite of Soviet pledges of "neutrality," and in spite of fresh Italian suggestions that the actual partition of Poland might be the cue for a peace offer by Chancellor Hitler through Premier Mussolini, anxiety over Rumania was clearly shown in London, Paris, and Bucharest.

Diplomatic activity in Paris revealed how the thread of French worries ran: Premier Edouard Daladier conferred with the Soviet ambassador, then the Premier talked with the head of the Anglo-French armies, Gen. Marie-Gustave Gamelin.

The foreign office meanwhile received urgent visits from the Greek, Rumanian, and Yugoslav ministers and the British Ambassador.

Both Britain and France are trying to avoid any action which would bring the Soviets into the conflict at this stage; nevertheless it was evident the allies fear Germany and the Soviets may be ready to share the wheat fields

Schwab Began Career As $1 Day Stake Driver

NEW YORK, Sept. 19.—(INS)—The death of Charles M. Schwab rolled down the curtain today on a dynasty of great American steelmasters whose fortunes rose fabulously with the tremendous development of the industry after the turn of the century.

Last of a company of such famous steel men as Andrew Carnegie, Henry Clay Frick and Elbert H. Gary, Schwab died peacefully in his sleep of a heart ailment at 9:30 last night in his apartment at Park avenue. He was 77.

The man who began his career as a $1 a day stake driver for Andrew Carnegie and 22 years later ruled America's first billion dollar corporation, United States Steel, had been confined to bed since his arrival from Europe last August 31 when he was brought ashore on a stretcher. He was stricken with a severe heart attack in London.

Schwab has been in failing health for the past several years but had always remained vigorous despite his age and his duties as Chairman of the Board of Bethlehem Steel Corporation until the death of his wife last January. Schwab had married her, then Miss Emma Erania Dinkey, at the age of 21 when his rising career made the union possible. She had been his constant companion throughout life and when she died he sadly closed his $8,000,000 mansion on Riverside Drive and set out to "start life anew." His health soon began to fail rapidly.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank DiRenzo, 122 Penn street, are receiving congratulations upon the birth of a son, Sunday evening at the private hospital of Dr. J. Fred Wagner.

Trustees of County Association Meet

DOYLESTOWN, Sept. 19.—There was a meeting of the Board of Trustees of the Bucks County Association, Friday night at the Doylestown Inn. Thomas Ross, chairman of the Board of Trustees, presided.

The trustees invited the chairmen of the various committees on planning and zoning and the chairmen of the local township committees to be present.

The fall activities for the advancing of the movement toward planning and zoning Bucks County was thoroughly discussed.

A resolution was passed that a meeting be called in the immediate future of all the chairmen and their committees, the meeting to be addressed by Francis A. Pitkin, director of the State Planning Board, in order that they may get first hand information on the best procedure. Immediately following this meeting arrangements will be made by each local chairman to hold a forum meeting in their respective townships for an open discussion on the merits of planning and zoning.

George Hotchkiss, trustee and vice-president of the association, tendered his resignation due to his ill health. This was accepted and Dorsey Richardson of Upper Makefield Township was elected to fill the vacancy.

TWO COUPLES MARRIED FORTY-NINE YEARS AGO

Mr. and Mrs. Sutterly and Mr. and Mrs. Bell Await 50th Anniversary

ARE CLOSE FRIENDS

MORRISVILLE, Sept. 19.—Mr. and Mrs. Edward H. Sutterly, 244 Hillcrest avenue, and Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Bell, Lower Makefield Township, are eagerly looking forward to next year when they will observe the 50th anniversaries of their marriages.

Through the coincidence that both couples were married on September 17, 1890, they have become good friends. Mr. and Mrs. Sutterly were married at the latter's sister's home. Mrs. Andrew Hendrickson, on North Delmor avenue, while Mr. and Mrs. Bell were married in Philadelphia on the very same day. Mrs. Sutterly is the former Miss Antoinette Carhart, of South Bethlehem, N. Y., and has lived here for 51 years. She is a former president of the Ladies Aid of the First Presbyterian Church, where she and her husband are members. Mr. Sutterly served as postmaster in Morrisville for 10 years during the Wilson Administration, and is now a foreman in the Vulcanized Rubber Company, where he has been employed for a number of years.

They have four children, Mrs. Edith Peartree, Ellsworth, Willard and Harold Sutterly, the latter tax collector of Hamilton Township. Another daughter, Florence, is deceased. Mr. and Mrs. Sutterly have seven grandchildren.

Mr. and Mrs. Bell were wed in Philadelphia, she being the former Miss Parmelia Aitken, of Philadelphia. Immediately after their marriage, the couple moved to Morrisville, residing on North Delmor avenue. In 1915 they moved to their present address, located just off the Yardley River Road. Mr. Bell is a retired salesman and during his lifetime has crossed the Atlantic nine times, coming from England when only 15 years old. Mrs. Bell is a member of the Methodist Church here, and of the Eastern Star and Court of Amaranth.

Back In Old Home

Plymouth, Pa., Sept. 19.—Young Arthur H. James, Jr., only son of Pennsylvania's Governor, was back home today in the little frame home where he was born 20 years ago.

But it was not a rejoicing Plymouth that welcomed young Arthur. It was a saddened, grief stricken community that mourned the death of the young man, following an infection which set in after an appendectomy.

Young James' body was taken home last evening from Harrisburg, where friends in private life and associates of the Governor stepped mournfully past the bier.

The body was taken directly to Harrisburg from Boonville, Missouri, where the youth died on Sunday.

Hundreds of town people and residents of nearby communities passed the bier here last night, and were continuing their mournful march today. The body will be on view until tomorrow, when at 3 p. m., eastern daylight time, the minister of the family church will conduct funeral services.

Burial will be in the cemetery at Sugar Notch, where the bodies of the youth's mother, brother and grandmother lie.

May Form Soviet Republic

Paris, Sept. 19.—A report that Germany and Russia have agreed to form a small Soviet republic from the remnants of Poland after satisfying their own claims was heard in Paris today.

The so-called new state would be known as a "Russian protectorate." The Germans would then take the position that Poland is not under the Nazi yoke, and that it would be up to Great Britain and France to declare war on Soviet Russia if hostilities are to continue.

It is believed in Paris that Reichsfuehrer Adolf Hitler might take that moment to make the much discussed "peace offer" under that most drastic of threats—pulverizing air attacks and crushing "Blitzkrieg" in the West, if Britain and France reject it. Declaring at a broadcast last night, that the air force is now finishing in Poland, the broadcasters stated that it is ready "for any new activity."

BUSINESS MEN'S GROUP APPROVES WPA PROJECT

Approve Action of President of South Langhorne Organization

LOCATED IN FIRE HOUSE

SOUTH LANGHORNE, Sept. 19.—Members of the Associated Business Men have approved the action of President John S. Lappan and his executive board in sponsoring the WPA educational project which has come here from Bristol.

Mr. Lappan explained that the project has a payroll of about $7,000 a month. The plan is for the sponsoring group to furnish the light and water required.

Joseph Keating, explained that the work done by the project is the making of images for use in school work to illustrate progress in mechanics, history, etc., and it is planned to send them to schools all over the State. It is said there are adequate orders on hand to keep the project going for over two years. About 49 persons are working now, and the place is in operation four days a week. The group finds the South Langhorne fire house an ideal place for the work, one of the important factors being the adequate light it affords. The place is occupied by the group only in the daytime. Two professional artists are employed, the others coming from the surrounding community.

It was announced there will be a meeting of the South Langhorne Fire Company this evening to consider the matter in more detail.

The project has been housed in the South Langhorne fire house for nearly two weeks, and those operating it offer to paint the interior of the building and put the heater in good repair if the materials required are furnished. Other needed repairs to the building would be made on the same terms.

Mr. Lappan's suggestion that a general committee consisting of representatives of the business men's group, the fire company and the fire company ladies' Auxiliary be named to go into the matter of how to raise the funds needed to take care of this matter met with the approval of the body, and he named Thomas Henning, Bert Sylvester and George Balderston to represent the business men.

Mr. Sylvester suggested the possibility of the business men having a cabin of their own, similar to that of

Here and There in Bucks County Towns

Several members of the Class of '39, Southampton high school, are planning to continue their education this fall. Miss Miriam Tanner will enter West Chester State Teachers' College; Joseph Hallowell is entering Penn State; Curtice White will attend Drexel Tech; Miss Pauline Wood has enrolled at the School of Industrial Art in Philadelphia; Miss Jeanne Stokes is entering Temple College to major in music; Miss Betty Johnson will enter the Abington Hospital in February to train for nurse.

Miss Helene Bauer, Class of '38, will return to Otterbein College, in Ohio, as a sophomore; William Robinson, Class of '36, and George Robinson, Class of '35, will return to West Chester State Teachers College.

The Dahli and Fall Flower Show of the Trevoze Horticultural Society is to be held in the Community Building, Trevoze, on Friday, September 22, from three until 10 p. m., and Saturday, September 23, 10 to 10 p. m. (d. s. t.). The schedule has interesting classes in the artistic arrangement section and the specimen classes will bring forth a wide variety of annuals and perennials as well as dahlias and gladioli. There will also be table arrangement and commercial displays and both floors of the building will be their usual riot of color.

The Annual Home-Coming Pilgrimage to the historic Newtown Presbyterian Church on Sycamore street, will take place on September 24, at 11 a. m., when a special service will be conducted by the pastor, Horace B. Hogeland and Joseph E. Lowmes are serving with the pastor to make arrangements for this service.

Out of 39 bills of indictment laid before them, members of the Grand Jury of the September Sessions of Criminal Court, at Doylestown, in their report stated they found 32 true bills and seven not true.

After visiting the various Bucks County Institutions, including the County Prison, the Court House and the Bucks County Home, the following report was submitted to the Court of Quarter Sessions:

"Our recommendations for the County Prison are that sheets and pillowcases should be provided for sanitary reasons. We recommend a new sink, and the purchase of needed aluminum ware for the kitchen.

"We give to the keepers of the prison a word of praise for the entire physical condition of the prison, as well as for the care and attention given the inmates.

"We visited the County Home and want to praise the physical condition of the existing buildings, the personnel, and the care and attention given the inmates.

"We wish to express approval of the conduct of the farm, its efforts and relationship to the County Home. We do criticize the condition of the refrigerators in the old men's building and ask that they be put in more sanitary condition. We recommend the construction of a root cellar and implement shed.

"We recommend, after our visit to the Court House and Administration Building, that adequate plans be started immediately for the future which will make provision to bring the Court House and Administration Building under one roof adequately to provide according to necessity.

"In other words, we do not care to pass on the present buildings because we believe something should be done for the future.

"As a minor detail, for the future Grand Juries, we recommend that a blackboard be placed in the Grand Jury room so that witnesses might demonstrate clearly such things as automobile accidents."

THE GREAT GAME OF POLITICS

By FRANK R. KENT

"Distributed by McNaught Syndicate, Inc."

The Third-Term Schemers

Washington, Sept. 18.

IT is a little unfortunate that on the threshold of the special session of Congress one of Mr. Roosevelt's strongest newspaper supporters—the Daily News of New York—should think it opportune to proclaim that the war that the Democratic convention to "draft" Mr. Roosevelt for a third term and makes his election certain. When it clashes with the "don't swap horses while crossing a stream" adage, it is stated, the American anti-third-term tradition will crumble.

THIS is unfortunate because it fits in with, supplements and encourages the activities of certain politicians of the "inner circle," falsely reported relegated to the rear, and creates a feeling that one would like to see absent during a period when the foreign policy of the nation is of such vital importance. It is a little difficult to take Mr. Roosevelt's appeal for an abandonment of partisanship patiently when it is so completely obvious that intimate friends and supporters see in the war an opportunity to revive the soggy third-term movement, which, with what seemed his approval, they had been pushing for weeks but which had practically petered out as hostile sentiment in the country, and particularly in the Democratic party, had become plain.

INDIVIDUALS close to the President, who were managing the third-term movement and had become deeply discouraged over its failure to progress, are now reported as excitedly counting upon the European war giving it new life and strength. Their idea is that with Mr. Roosevelt appealing

HILLS OF GOLD

But for the fact that England was too busy trying to straighten out its own internal affairs 89 years ago, California might today be a part of the British Empire, rather than one of the 48 states of the Union.

In The Lion's Shadow, a University of California program, cognizance is taken of a situation little known to most Americans and occupying slight if any space in the works of American historians: We are told that California statehood, gained on September 9, 1850, marked the final independence of the region from further possibility of allegiance to the British Crown.

California was claimed for England by Sir Francis Drake who landed north of San Francisco on June 17, 1579; but the claim lapsed through failure to colonize. Major chance for English control, according to this program, came just a century ago when a plan received wide support for "British" creditors to write off $50,000,000 in Mexican bonds, take over California, and recover their investments through operations modeled after the Hudson's Bay Company or the British East India Company.

All of this may strike some serious historians as fanciful, but that is the way some scholars of the West Coast look back on the factors and events which resulted in the admission of California as part of the United States. The subject is controversial, and every student of history is entitled to his opinion. But there is no disputing the fact that California celebrated last Saturday the anniversary of statehood, gained September 9, 1850, the year after the most famous "gold rush" in the history of the world. Since those days, much gold has been found in the hills of California, to say nothing of the gold in "them thar hills" of Hollywood.

FOOD HYSTERIA

The sooner people come to their senses in the matter of food supplies and food prices the better off they will be. We have already expressed the view that some changes in food costs are probably inevitable, but we also believe that somewhere in the machinery of government there lies power—and disposition—to take whatever measures may be necessary to control deliberate and unwarranted attempts at profiteering. We have noted, too, Secretary Wallace's assertion that as a nation we have in our possession immense quantities of food supplies.

And yet we read now that a food hysteria is in the making, that some persons have become panicky and are buying in fear of either a shortage or great increase in cost, that, in short, they are going in for the sort of hoarding which marked a period of unnecessary fear during the First World War.

Even if it is true, as alleged, that some wholesalers are definitely committed to an intent to boost prices beyond all reason, public reaction in the form of hoarding is merely a way of playing the profiteers' game. To do that simply creates a false and temporary shortage. Excessive buying stimulates expanding prices, temporary shortage. Excessive buying should remember.

Is that the Duke's voice that breaks through faintly from time to time, or has the Axis developed an echo?

The Great Game of Politics

for an adjournment of politics and personally preserving a noble non-partisan attitude, political activity upon the part of other Democrats mentioned for the Presidency can be effectively smothered and the third-term idea gradually eased into the public mind as inevitable. That such is the hope has been made too clear to dispute. It is got calculated to promote the sort of co-operation and national unity in foreign affairs that most people would like to see.

CERTAINLY, it makes it more difficult for those anti-New Deal Democrats and Republicans, in Congress and out, who want to support the Roosevelt-Hull effort to raise the arms embargo. To the distrust of Mr. Roosevelt's judgment and the feeling that he is not a same man to be given automatic power in a time of national danger there is now added the suspicion, engendered by themselves, that the extreme New Deal politicians are trying to utilize the war situation to keep him in the White House and themselves in power. It seems unlikely that Mr.

Roosevelt can continue to maintain his high-minded attitude of aloofness while his friends are thus steaming up the third-term movement, publicly insisting that the war has made his renomination and re-election unavoidable.

THE truth is that the opposition to a Roosevelt third term is just as intense today as it was before war broke out. The people who distrusted Mr. Roosevelt's judgment and opposed his domestic policies have not been changed by the war. There is no reason they should be. On the contrary, there is every reason why those who were convinced that he was an unsafe and unbalanced leader in a period of peace should feel even more distaste for his leadership in a time of war. That does not in any way prevent them from supporting his entirely sound neutrality proposals, nor in wanting to give a display of national unity in foreign affairs. However, the prospects of this being achieved are certainly diminished by the undisciplined efforts to use the war as the instrument to force a third term down the throats of a reluctant people.

THE effort is not likely to succeed. The "don't-swap-horses" theory does not hold water. As has been before stated, it depends altogether upon the horse and on the stream. There does not exist now and, whether we are in war ourselves or not, there will not exist next year, any real reason why we should suspend our normal political processes, scrap the oldest and most cherished American political tradition and accept for President a third time a man whose policies have created a national mess of such unprecedented proportions that it will take a generation and more to straighten up.

THEIR is little more chance of a third term now than before, but the third-termers are desperately trying to improve that chance. It has been suggested to Mr. Roosevelt that he would greatly promote the national interests as well as enhance his own reputation if he would squelch these ardent friends by a flat and final declaration that he will not accept nomination or permit himself to be "drafted." Unquestionably that would promote the non-partisan spirit and gain support for his foreign policy. But, while he cannot help know of these third-term proclamations, he gives no sign of disapproval. It is a great pity.

Rev. I. L. Clark Named Head of S. S. Ass'n

vention were in charge of Rev. Mr. Clark and Howard Schimer, of Phillipsburg, N. J., presiding at the organ. Prior to the address of welcome by L. R. Trauger, superintendent of St. Peter's Lutheran Sunday School, and the response by Mr. Hedrick a Bible study on the theme, "The Names of God," was conducted by Dr. Robert Fritsch, of the faculty of Muhlenberg College, Allentown. Dr. Fritsch spoke at length of the proper names found in the Bible and explained their meaning.

During the Friday evening session a vocal duet was rendered by Mr. and Mrs. Robert Koppe, Milford, N. J., members of St. Peter's Lutheran Sunday School.

The address of the evening was delivered by Rev. Frank Prentzel, pastor of Asbury Methodist Church, Allentown, who took as his subject, "Looking unto Jesus, the Master Teacher." One of the principles of modern teaching, he said, is to start with a concrete object and then to work up to a great principle. Although Jesus did not teach according to modern principles, he taught by means of object lessons.

Briefly Rev. Mr. Prentzel outlined several principles for the Sunday School teacher of today. These, he said, should include the adaptation of teaching to the individuals, establishing a point of contact, teaching to stimulate thought, teaching by analogy and teaching systematically. Bringing his address to a close, Rev. Mr. Prentzel stressed the message of the great Teacher, "Go ye into all the world and teach the Gospel to every creature."

Sessions on Saturday afternoon were resumed with a song service and a continuation of the Bible study with Dr. Fritsch in charge of the latter.

During the Saturday afternoon session four informal conferences were held for the children's, intermediate, young people's and adult divisions. Leaders in charge included Miss A. M. Roberts, of the field staff of the State Sabbath School Association, children's division; Rev. Harry Mengel, pastor of the Evangelical church, Telford; young people's division; Rev. A. J. Neuenchwander, Quakertown, pastor of West Swamp Mennonite Church; intermediate division; and Rev. E. J. Bohn, pastor of Zion Mennonite Church, Souderton adult division.

Prior to the election of officers Rev. and Mrs. I. L. Clark rendered a vocal selection and following the election another vocal selection was rendered by the Misses Lillian and Ruth Redlow, of the Hilltown Baptist Sunday School.

The following officers were elected: President, Rev. Mr. Clark; first vice-president, Quintus Leatherman, Souderton; second vice president, R. Rau-dolph Pursel, Mechanicsville; corresponding secretary, Miss Margaret A. Moyer, Pipersville R. D., recording secretary, Walter N. Grass, Chalfont, R. D., and treasurer, William E. Gentry, Morrisville.

The following superintendents were also elected: children, Mrs. James P. McLaughlin, Mechanicsville; young people, Rev. R. Henry Niekirk, of this place; adult, Paul M. Wack, Hatfield; administration, Rev. A. J. Neuenchwander, Quakertown; missionary, Rev. Wheeler K. Bogges, Doylestown; temperance, Mrs. Leroy Nixon, Newtown; leadership training, Elmer P. Stattler, Ivyland; vacation Bible and week day schools, Rev. Julius H. King, New Britain, and publicity, Ralston R. Hedrick, Bristol R. D. 2.

Saturday afternoon's session was brought to a conclusion with another Bible conference in charge of Dr. Fritsch and a worship program in charge of Rev. Mr. Clark.

A song service and a continuation of the Bible study were the opening features of the session Saturday evening, and prior to the installation of the new officers by Dr. Fritsch selections on the occasion were rendered by Miss Ruth Redlow.

"The Sunday School teacher a Shepherd" was the subject of an address by the Rev. H. K. Williams, pastor of Alpha Baptist Church, Phila. This address was the concluding feature of the convention.

Taking up his address, Rev. Mr. Williams said every Sunday school teacher should get the right attitude toward teaching or the attitude of a shepherd leading his flock. A good shepherd, he said, feeds and leads his sheep. Teachers were advised when taking reading material into the class room to adjust it to the need and understanding of the pupils. He also urged teachers to lead by example because, he said, it is hard to get young people to become Christians when the leaders set poor examples.

Two Youthful Girls Given Stolen Loot

Police from Oxford Valley barracks. After further questioning of the men, Detective Russo learned that the trio had frequently visited the Abrams house and then the investigation shifted to Bensalem Township.

The Abrams sisters were questioned and told the officers that they had been friends with the three men held in custody at Cheltenham Township. The girls readily told the officers that they were aware that the trio was robbing and also holding up people. They turned over to the police a camera, a watch, and a lot of inexpensive jewelry, all of which they said had been given to them. There were also a quantity of cigarettes.

The girls were very much unnerved at the hearing, which was attended by their father and also an aunt.

Detective Russo at the hearing made it plain that he was asking that the girls be held for court so that the court would have an opportunity to protect the girls. "Conditions are such that I would like the court to learn of this case and have these girls taken care of," Russo told Justice of the Peace James Laughlin at the hearing which was held at 10 o'clock last night in the Municipal Building here.

The police are of the opinion that the trio of men made the Abrams place a hiding out place after committing robberies and hold-ups, and that the Abrams girls were being used as a blind.

CHAPTER XXXVI

Iris stood, clutching her purse in both hands, as she looked slowly around the apartment.

"So this is where you live. . . . Her voice was halting. She swayed a little.

Mike caught her breath and realized that Iris had been drinking.

Iris laughed. Perhaps she had noted the growing concern in Mike's wide open eyes. "You're scared aren't you?"

Mike ignored her question, asking instead: "Why did you come?"

"Oh, you know well enough why I came," Iris had to steady herself with the back of a chair. The telephone rang. Mike started toward the phone.

"Don't answer that!"

Iris's eyes were blazing. She drew a tiny automatic pistol from her purse. Her hand wavered, but Mike realized that Iris's aim might be recklessly accurate. The phone rang for quite a time.

"I just want to tell you: You think you're smart, going after Larry. Well, you're not!" Iris waved the pistol. She seemed suddenly to become sober.

"You got Wish Malone to snop around, because you wanted my Larry. I know how you found out about Alfredo! Carol told you."

Mike was so stunned she could not speak. She just stood there looking at the blonde girl sheathed in black velvet.

"I came here to find out one thing. Where did you find out Alfredo and I weren't divorced?" Iris rasped.

Mike tried desperately to think. What would happen if she rushed past Iris to the door? Would Iris really shoot? Mike figured she would not, but—

"Tell me!"

"How you found out about Alfredo and me?"

"I didn't."

Mike tried another tact. "Mrs. Regan, this is all very silly."

"Don't you 'Mrs. Regan' me." Just then the buzzer sounded. Both stood rooted to the spot.

"Who is it?"

"I don't know."

"Keep still!" Iris warned.

The bell sounded again and then became silent.

Iris resumed with, "Yes, I'm going to shoot you. You can't have Handsome. I can't either, but I'm not going to see you grab him."

There was a slight noise outside in the hall. Mike tried to keep her face blank as she realized with alarm that Mr. Regan, Sr., had a key to the apartment. Iris did not seem to notice anything. But Mike was sure she heard faintly preceptable sounds. There was a key in the lock on the other side of the door. Slowly, quietly, the door began to open. Iris turned toward it.

"Don't open that door!" Mike's voice broke the silence in a crescendo

ON THE SCREENS

GRAND THEATRE

The drama-packed story of Harry Faversham, who is accused of cowardice by his closest friends when he resigns from his regiment on the eve of its departure to join Kitchener's Army in the Sudan, and who redeems himself by some of the most darddevil feats on record, is unfolded in the gripping tale of "Four Feathers," Alexander Korda's new Technicolor feature at the Grand Theatre today through United Artists release.

Heading the cast of "Four Feathers," which was directed by Zoltan Korda, are Ralph Richardson, John Clements, C. Aubrey Smith and June Duprez, stunning 20-year-old brunette who was discovered by Alexander Korda and awarded the leading feminine role.

RITZ THEATRE

Hal Roach's new romantic comedy, "Zenobia," opens at the Ritz Theatre, today, with a star-studded cast which includes Oliver Hardy, Jean Parker, June Lang, Billie Burke, Alice Brady, James Ellison and Harry Langdon. The new picture, based on the hilarious short story, "Zenobia's Infidelity," by H. C. Bunner, was filmed from the screen play by Corey Ford and was directed by Gordon Douglas.

"The Sweethearts of the West" are once more united in Republic's latest musical western, "Southward Ho!" and will be seen at the Ritz Theatre today.

BRISTOL THEATRE

The Hilarious Higginses are with us again, this time under an intriguing title, "Should Husbands Work?" today at the Bristol Theatre. Republic produces this homey, natural screen family series with a canny eye. There is no intricate plot, merely a series of side-splitting events just as likely to occur in your own family on the morrow. These sequences pile up on one another in rapid humorous fashion, and keep audiences in continuous laughter.

SONNENBERG AND DUSEK ON ARENA'S OPENING CARD

TRENTON, Sept. 19.—Promoter Johnny Ipp will start his eighth season at the helm of the wrestling destinies at the Arena tomorrow night.

An all-star card has been arranged by Ipp and the wind-up will bring together two of the foremost mat artists in the rough and tumble game. They are Gus Sonnenberg, former heavy-weight champion of the world, and Emil Dusek, wildest of the famed Nebraska clan of wrestling brothers.

Sonnenberg is the originator of the flying tackle as an offensive weapon and his reckless use of this attack revolutionized the wrestling game. He still is a deadly tackler and is planning a campaign that he hopes will regain for him his former crown.

Dusek was the top box-office attraction at the Arena several years ago but sustained injuries that incapacitated him for almost three years. This will be his first local encounter since recovering. The contest will be over the best two fall out of three, 90 minute time limit route.

Three exceptionally fine bouts will precede the feature attraction. George "Red" Ryan, flaming headed Philadelphia youngster, who made a great hit with the fans last season, meets John Katan, Canadian villain, who has been the pet hatred here for a long time.

Maurice LaChappelle, quick and clever French mat artist, will vie with Chick Garibaldi, youngest of the Garibaldi wrestling family, and Gino "Red" Vagnone, a widely heralded newcomer, will make his debut against Eddie Newman rough-house New Englander.

The first bout will start at 8.45 p. m.

big freight came along and all of a sudden I felt sick again from the ether. I continued on and then the accident happened. The ether made me awful sick and that's the cause of the accident."

The defendant's car hit a truck, glanced off and struck another car, causing about $300 damage to his own car.

Paul Reese testified that the defendant did take him to the hospital but that he was not there when he came out of ether after the operation.

Character witnesses were then called by the defense attorney, Wynne James, Jr., all of whom said that Northard's reputation for sobriety was excellent. Some knew him to take a drink but never to get drunk, including his wife, Clara.

District Attorney Edward G. Biester, who tried the case for the Commonwealth, then recalled the defendant for further cross-examination.

"Is it not true that you were thrown out of the Abington Hospital?" the District Attorney asked the defendant.

"No, I was not thrown out; I was told to get out if I did not keep quiet," Northard replied.

District Attorney Biester had checked up on the hospital story as told by the defendant between the time that he left the stand and was recalled.

Justice of the Peace Cooper, of Langhorne, was also recalled in rebuttal and testified that when the defendant was first brought to his office he was too drunk for a hearing and that he postponed it until the next morning.

"The defendant said to me," Cooper testified, "I've been drinking beer and highballs all day and I had had plenty to drink. I want to go to jail."

Justice Cooper said that it was with difficulty that he was able to get the defendant to notify his wife about his arrest.

In addressing the jury, District Attorney Biester said, in part: "I think it is an insult to the intelligence of a Bucks county jury to try and get away with such a ridiculous story. No thoughtful, intelligent person can possibly believe it."

In pronouncing sentence, Judge Keller remarked:

"You had another attorney in this case first who advised you to plead guilty, and then you changed. You have been properly convicted and the evidence was so overwhelming that you could not have been found otherwise. The smart thing for you to have done would have been to tell the truth in this matter. You probably should go to jail, and the only reason you are not going is because the Court has some pity for your family."

Members of the jury were: Charles Hafner, Quakertown R. D.; Leo Devine, Bristol; John C. Frick, Chalfont; George F. Elmer, Bristol; Abraham J. Voorhees, New Hope; Frank B. Johnson, Morrisville; Luther H. Crouse, Riegelsville; Charles E. Hager, Fendale; Robert Whitefield, Oakford; Harlan H. Howell, Bristol; Mary L. Grim, Trumbauersville; Harry W. Weirbach, Pleasant Valley.

Judge Calvin S. Boyer yesterday sentenced Jess A. Davis, 53, Croydon, who had never been in any trouble before, to serve one month to two years in the county prison. The defendant pleaded guilty to driving while drunk when his car struck a car driven by Charles W. Hutchinson, doing $45 damage. Davis is unemployed and the sole support of his 83-year-old father.

Joseph C. Lister, 44, West Bristol, pleaded guilty to driving while drunk, at a hearing before Judge Boyer. There was no accident in the case. He was given a suspended sentence on condition that he pay the costs of prosecution at $5 a week and placed him on probation for two years.

Edward Potterton, 45, Croydon, charged with operating a car after his operator's license had been withdrawn, was given a suspended sentence by Judge Boyer on condition that he pay a fine of $25 and the costs. He was placed on probation for two years.

George Valones, 23, 5300 Tacony street, Frankford, was given a suspended sentence on condition that he pay a fine of $300 and costs after he had pleaded guilty to failing to stop his automobile at the scene of an accident near Jamison, July 4.

William Shellman, Langhorne, was sentenced to 30 days in the county prison yesterday by Judge Keller after he had pleaded guilty to driving while drunk.

Franklin Wolfinger, Quakertown, was fined $100 and costs by Judge Keller for driving while drunk.

Louis Tofstupall, Phila., pleaded guilty to failing to stop his junk truck at the scene of an accident while driving home from Trenton. He was fined $150 costs by Judge Keller and given a suspended prison sentence of 30 days to one year.

Walter Urbanek, 48, Philadelphia, pleaded guilty to driving while drunk in Doylestown and was sentenced to serve 30 days to one year in prison by Judge Keller. He was told that if he could raise a fine of $200 he would not have to serve the prison sentence.

John F. Andrews, 27, Philadelphia, pleaded guilty to operating an automobile without the consent of the owner and was given a suspended sentence on condition that he pay $100 in lieu of a fine.

Gentry, both living on North Pennsylvania avenue here.

Both couples lived near the river at times, they recall the high waters that were prevalent years ago during floods. Mrs. Bell at one time went upstairs after putting some pastry in the oven to bake, and upon returning found the entire kitchen inundated. Mr. and Mrs. Sutterly once kept a store at the North Delmorr avenue-East Bridge street sector.

Mr. Weller's, as a meeting place and for social functions. The idea met with general approval, and Julius Leblein was of the opinion that now is a good time to begin raising a building fund.

It was reported that the Reading Company, in response to the request of the group, had placed reflectors on the gates at the Bellevue avenue grade crossing at Langhorne station. It is felt this will be a great aid to the safety of motorists, particularly strangers, at night.

Mr. Keating was requested to see the State Highway Department relative to the placing of white dividing lines on the hill north of the station.

The special railroad committee, consisting of Messrs. Keating, O'Brien and Ellis, was requested to arrange with the railroad company for the placing of South Langhorne signs south of the station. The company has already furnished a lease for the rental of property on which to place the signs.

Dolph McCormick made a plea for support for the Parkland First Aid Corps in their work. He said the corps is doing much good in the community, being on service 24 hours a day to care for those needing services. He feels first aid is a definite community asset. His motion that the association do what it can to further the work was readily passed.

Walter Weller and Lloyd S. Buchler were presented as new members.

The next meeting will be held at Flannery's, Parkland, when plans will be formulated for a masquerade Hal-loween party, to which the wives and friends of members will be invited.
